The plot is centered about the quest for the Holy Grail, the cup from which the Savior drank at "The Last Supper." The hero, Parsifal, derives his name from the Arabian language, meaning "guileless fool," fool being used in the Arabian sense. The hero is introduced as a simple peasant lad, having wounded a ewe in the holy forest of the grail. He ac- companies a knight to the palace of the grail, where he watches the suffering of the stricken king, Amharus.

Negoboff has been placed in charge of an information squadron of scouts and converted merchantmen.

Boys Are Champion Collectors.
Bounty Industry Is Quite Flourishing One in Salt Lake.
Fifteen-Year-Old Lad Makes His Ap- pearance With Eighty-One Dozen.

The champion collector of sparrows' eggs made his appearance at the Auditor's office yesterday. Edward Morgan is his name and he is about 15 years of age. Young Morgan brought in eighty-one dozen—just 912 insect pests—upon which Deputy Auditor Higginbotham paid him $4.05, or 5 cents a dozen bounty as provided by law. This is the largest number of eggs ever brought in by one person at one time, the nearest approach to it being fifty-seven dozen, brought in by Charlie Barker on May 16.

Good Day for Eggs.
Yesterday was a pretty good day for sparrows' eggs. Fifty-two dozen being brought in for destruction and, incidentally, of course, the collection of bounty. The bounty industry in sparrows' eggs is quite a flourishing one at this season of the year. The small boys are quite industrious in gathering up the eggs and many nimble collectors for their efforts.

Large Collectors.
Among the larger collectors of eggs yesterday were Bert Miller, 17 dozen; Wesley Latham, 15 dozen; Willard Wor- then, 14 dozen; Lawrence Lee, 11 dozen; Willie Jeffer, 10 dozen. Deputy Auditor Higginbotham, for convenience, keeps a supply of small change on hand, so he may pay the boys as they come in.

Good in the Sparrow.
County Auditor J. M. Fisher, who is somewhat of a naturalist, has recently discovered some good in the despised English sparrow. He was looking out the window of his office the other day and discovered a sparrow very industriously picking the microscopic seeds from a candellone that other pest of the vegetable kingdom. After studying the maneuvers of the diminutive bird for a time he declared that he now had more respect for the little dirty birds that England sent to trouble us a few years ago.

CRAWFORD, Ark., May 13.—R. S. Evans, who is spending his vacation at his home here, on his return from duties in connection with the United States engineering corps on the Isth- mus of Panama, is not the most popular man in town right now. Several weeks ago when Evans returned he brought with him a tropical menagerie and collection of insects, including many flying ants. The ants es- caped and have increased in population to such an extent, with the coming of warm weather, that a crisis was reached and the swarm about town grew in numbers until merchants were forced to shut up shop.

Minneapolis People Like Prof. McClellan
Complimentary Notices of His First Organ Recital in That City in Press.
Very complimentary are the notices of the first organ recital given by J. J. Mc- Clellan of this city in the new Auditorium at Minneapolis. Extracts from some of them, under date of May 10, follow:

Mr. McClellan's renditions, though unimpassioned, are soulful and refined. His develop- ment of the theme is accurate and the technique is faultless. The audience realized, as it is hoped hundreds more will realize while Mr. McClellan is here, that in this great in- strument Minneapolis possesses a treasure which for years to come will be a source of artistic delight and an unfailing source of inspiration. Masters such as Mr. McClellan will always find here a medium for the ex- pression of the loftiest sentiments.

The inclemency of the weather resulted in an audience which scarcely half filled the Auditorium, but those who were present ac- corded enthusiastic and sincere applause to every part of the seven numbers given.—Evening Tribune.
